Body is Riding in Highest State Aboard the Cruiser Columbia, in Chesapeake Bay—Today, With Crash of Guns From Saluting Forts and Naval Ports, the Cruiser Will Bear the Precious Body Up the Potomac River—At Every Point Sorrowful Pride For Our Sons Sleeping in France Will Be Given Vent in Unstinted Homage.

waters of Chelapeah Bay. Tomorrow to the crash of guns from saluting forts and naval posts, the treasured cadets in tribute to which the nation centers its efforts will be laid to rest. Whether sleeping in France, will move in honored progress up the historic Potomac. And in preparation for its arrival in the nation's capital, late tomorrow, even as they shape themselves toward a climax of honors on Armistice Day.

As the Olympia steams at measured pace down the river the guns of Fort Washington will boom out the salute of twenty-one guns to her hull-mounted flag. Off Mount Vernon, the ship of the unknown hero will bury its homelike flag in the waters of the Potomac at Washington. Again at Washington barracks a battery will hammer out its twenty-one gun message of highest salute to the ship of the unknown hero. At Washington navy yard as the old ship pulls in to dock at the end of her journey. Even as she turns into the Potomac to complete her voyage, she will receive the first highest naval honors for the unknown soldier she carries to his last rest. The battleship North Dakota will discharge a salute of twenty-one guns and flags, waiting in new tribute squadron of cavalry and mounted infantry will be sent to the Potomac. The catafalque waits under the vast dome, the catafalque on which Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley lay.

At the Washington Hotel wait at the great night of stars leading up to the resting place and the men in khaki will keep constant vigil about the bier there until it is carried out Armistice Day to be placed in the new memorial amphitheatre at Arlington cemetery across the river.

Late in the day and before the public will be permitted to enter the rotunda to pay its respects to the humble soldier who lies in such high state as an emperor might envy, President Harding will lead a procession to the catafalque. It is the tribute of the head of the nation to him who has given him all for his country, Vice President Coolidge will lead the procession. Behind the flag-drawn coffin, and Senator Cummins, president protempore of the senate and Speaker Gillett of the house jointly will place the wreath composed of the leaves of the olive and of the oak and snow. Through the night that follows and until the booming of minute guns heralds the dawn on Armistice Day the best of all things will be done.

And ahead of the cruiser will steam the destroyer Burnside as escort of honor to the dead.

At the navy yard, the navy will surrender a variety of "A's" emblem that marks as perhaps no other in the nation's history the glory of his who dies for the flag to the army comrades of the dead man. He will be given back to his keeping of the emblem which will be worn where he stood shoulder to shoulder in France. His hero guard of honor alone will lay hand upon his coffin thereafter.

The transfer will be in full ceremony. As the casket leaves the ship, the guns of the Olympia will boom out the twenty-one gun salute. The ship's band will play a dirge as it is carried down the gangway with soldiers and sailors at present arms and officers at salute.

This honored soldier to his last rest four armed sentries will stand at the corner of the pier. Each branch of the army and navy will furnish men for this duty which will stand always for attention through the long hours. Before them will pass on Thursday a strain of Americans, paying homage. Not a minute of that day, from morning until night, will pass without the presence of some society to lay a wreath of the emblem, among them the British ambassador to testify to Britain's sympathy. There will be mountains of bright flowers along the great hall before the casket and all that survive will later to Arlington to wither at last of the stone above the quiet nook in which the unknown will come at last to rest forever.

MARINES ARE TO GUARD MAIL TRAINS AND TRUCKS	SENATE VOTES EXTENSION OF EMERGENCY TARIFF
Washington, Nov. 8.—With orders to shoot to kill if necessary to prevent mail robberies, one thousand marines were ordered today to guard mail trains and mail trains and trucks and post offices in fifteen cities. The men will be armed with pistols and sawed-off shotguns. Postmaster General Hays announced after a conference with Major General Smith, commander of the marine corps. The	Washington, Nov. 8.—The senate is today passed the house bill extending the emergency tariff but amended so as to continue in effect until superseded by the permanent bill instead of expiring February 1, 1914. All provisions of the temporary law, passed originally May 27, including the dye embargo, were retained in the measure.

Arrangements for the services of the marines, the postmaster general said, were made with the secretary of the navy. The secretary of the navy was expected to attend the conference today's meeting, and President Harding is said to have expressed approval of Mr. Hays' plan to check looting of the mails.

Some of the members of the general staff would board trains tonight and within twenty-four hours would be on their way to the scene of the disaster.
